

Two-Way Conversion Meeting
Tuesday, November 1, 2016
East Liberty Presbyterian Church
6-8 p.m.

The Urban Redevelopment Authority of Pittsburgh (URA) is beginning the planning and design to convert Station Street and Euclid Avenue (the last remaining pieces of the former Penn Circle) to two-way traffic on neighborhood-oriented streets.

At this meeting, the URA and its consultants will present the scope of the project, design elements including bicycle facilities, and will display several possible design alternatives for review and comment.

Representatives from the URA and its engineering consultant, Parsons Brinkerhoff, will be on hand to discuss.

Please join us for this discussion, help provide community input, and learn about our next steps to complete a circulation and mobility study for East Liberty's Western Gateway.
