Pittsburgh Technology Center (PTC) is the redevelopment of 48 acres of former industrial land into the region’s premier research and development hub.

The PTC offers proximity, available land, infrastructure, and parking to create additional research and lab space close to Oakland and Downtown, the region’s two “Eds & Meds” hubs.

Seven state-of-the-art buildings totaling 684,400 square feet have emerged at PTC over the past 12 years. They host a broad range of the region’s technology leaders including the University of Pittsburgh Center of Biotechnology and Bioengineering, the Carnegie Mellon Entertainment Technology Center, Union Switch and Signal, ThermoFisher, and Baskem SA.
